

The European Psychoanalytic Film Festival

Started in 2001, the biennial European Psychoanalytic Film Festival (epff) has now taken place ten times. With its rich programme of film screenings followed by panel discussions between film directors and psychoanalysts, lectures and workshops, it has been regularly attended by an international audience of between 250 and 300 people.

Throughout these twenty years, I had the privilege to be responsible for the organisation and the running of epff: to see it grow and change, to have dozens of colleague psychoanalysts and psychotherapists, filmmakers and film scholars contribute to its success, and to be given the chance to watch hundreds of movies from all over Europe (most of them never commercially distributed in Britain) as well as to meet and work with some wonderful people.

Having now decided to resign from my position as epff's Director and to let others take over from me, I thought it may be of interest to provide an overview of what these ten epffs have offered to those attending them, what they have achieved, who has been involved in them. For this purpose, I have compiled here some factual information which I hope should give at least a general idea of what we have done.
